

The Turkeyman Cometh

Award-winning outdoor writer and photographer Bob Humphrey is considered one of the nation's leading authorities on turkey biology, behavior and hunting. That reputation was cemented with the release of his book: New England Turkey Hunting: Strategies for Success, and he was the subject of a feature story in New England Game & Fish entitled: New England's Turkey Pro.

An insightful and dynamic speaker, he is frequently invited to be a featured presenter at sporting shows, expos and special events throughout the region. He also does seminars at sportsman's clubs and sporting goods retailers, where his expertise and enthusiasm make him a favorite with audiences.

"He belongs to the school of woodsmen my grandfather used to describe as "hard hunters." That is to say, individuals who take their sport seriously, go about it in a fashion where their dedication is matched only by their sporting ethics, and realize that in the school of the outdoors graduation day never arrives."

-- Jim Casada, contributing editor to Turkey & Turkey Hunting magazine

Turkey hunting is the fastest growing segment of hunting community. And among those who participate, the quest for sound advice and information is nearly as insatiable as their quest for success. That is why Humphrey's name is sure to draw crowds of turkey hunting enthusiasts who are eager to learn more about their favorite avocation. As you start lining up your guest speakers for the coming show season, I hope you will consider inviting New England's most popular and widely-read outdoor writer and turkey hunting authority.
